

After earning his MBA at Rice, José Llontop Cadenas became one of the youngest managing directors in the history of Ingersoll-Rand, a $7 billion Fortune 100 company. In charge of I-R's highly strategic Mexico operations, he quickly utilized skills he gained at the Jones School. "Randy Batsell's marketing research and quantitative analysis courses enabled me to design the marketing research we used to develop our strategy. Our findings marked a turning point in our operation, enabling me to convince upper management, our sales force, and our distributor channel that a different strategy was needed," he explains. The results were textbook perfect: José improved the company's market share from a distant third to first, and bookings increased by 66 percent in spite of Mexico's peso devaluation and financial crisis in 1994. When he moved to CEMEX, the world's third largest cement company, José's finance courses also paid off. "I breezed through my training in CEMEX's financial division," he says. Currently, José, who now works for Venezolana de Cementos (a subsidiary of CEMEX), oversees the team that is working on optimizing his company's competitiveness in Venezuela. A Peruvian native who became a U.S. citizen in 1993, José is married and has three children.

PERSONALIZED CAREER PLANNING

THE JONES SCHOOL'S CAREER PLANNING CENTER (CPC) IS AN EXTREMELY VALUABLE ADVOCATE FOR YOUR FUTURE.

The CPC offers more campus interviews per student and more personalized service than any "Top 25 MBA" program in the nation. In 1998–99, approximately 900 on-campus interviews for full-time employment took place, an average of eight per student. Approximately 600 interviews were conducted for first-year students seeking summer internships.

In addition to linking you with potential summer internships and permanent employers, the CPC also gives you a competitive edge with customized placement training that includes résumé preparation, company research, interview workshops, mock interviews, and alumni career panels.

Every first-year student meets one-on-one with a counselor to discuss career goals and a strategy for achieving them. Mock interviews are actually required in your first semester. After an interviewing workshop, you'll research a particular company and participate in a mock interview that's videotaped and critiqued. The CPC also uses Career Leader, a self-assessment tool developed by two Harvard Business School professors.

Additional workshops are conducted on campus by recruiters from top firms. For example, representatives from Booz-Allen & Hamilton may present a case method interview workshop, while recruiters from Ernst & Young may conduct behavioral interviewing sessions.

The CPC, the Jones Graduate School Alumni Association, and numerous student organizations sponsor career panels related to specific functional areas—such as marketing, finance, and consulting—in which visiting representatives discuss their companies' culture and work ethic and offer tips on preparing for employment.

PARTIO TIME!

On Thursday afternoons, as classes wind down for the week, Jones School students gather for lively "partios" on the patio of Herring Hall. Sponsored by recruiting companies that provide free beer and pizza, partios give you a chance to socialize with fellow students and faculty and to meet with potential employers in a fun, relaxing atmosphere.

MARKETING YOUR ASSETS

The CPC actively markets Jones School graduates to hundreds of corporate recruiters by publishing your résumé in two books that are sent to prospective employers and linked to our Internet homepage (available only to corporate recruiters via password). The Graduating Class Book, published each September, features the résumés of students scheduled to graduate the following May, along with an index to their major fields of interest. The Summer Internship Book, containing the résumés of first-year students seeking summer employment, is distributed each December.

"I HAD RESERVATIONS ABOUT LEAVING A GOOD JOB TO RETURN TO SCHOOL, BUT NOW I SEE THE TIME I SPENT AT THE JONES SCHOOL WAS INVALUABLE. I GREW TREMENDOUSLY BOTH PROFESSIONALLY AND PERSONALLY, AND WITH THE AID OF THE CAREER PLANNING CENTER, I LANDED MY DREAM JOB."

A WORLD OF POSSIBILITIES

OF THE WORLD'S BEST COMPANIES.

ADDITIONAL CAREER RESOURCES

The Jones School is a member of the MBA Consortium, an association of 15 premier business schools that connects students with corporate recruiters at several national events. Interviews are held in Atlanta each November for full-time placement and in New York each January for summer internships. International students also have the option of interviewing with major employers at two annual Foreign National MBA Career Forums.

THE BUSINESS INFORMATION CENTER

One of the quickest ways to find out about a company in which you're interested is to use the Business Information Center (BIC), a resource and research center designed specifically to benefit Jones School students, faculty, and alumni. The BIC offers access to a world of company information and bibliographic data, including on-line and compact disc electronic sources. Its services include Bloomberg, which provides on-line data from all of the major securities exchanges, corporate financial information, and financial news, and Lexis, which contains full-text information from around the world on business and legal subjects.

"DOING THE MBA WITH TWO SMALL CHILDREN AND A HUSBAND WHO HAS A DEMANDING JOB HAS BEEN AN OVERWHELMING UNDERTAKING. BUT IT'S BEEN WELL WORTH IT. ALUMNI CONNECTIONS

ALUMNI OF RICE UNIVERSITY'S JONES GRADUATE SCHOOL INCLUDE TOP TIER EXECUTIVES WITH MAJOR CORPORATIONS.

Jones School alumni enthusiastically share their contacts and insight to help students establish and advance their careers. Equally helpful are the countless other Rice University alumni, who can be found in leading positions in virtually every industry.

Each fall, the Jones Graduate School Alumni Association hosts a Career Forum at which alumni discuss their professions and answer questions about career paths and strategies.

Alumni connections are available through a database at the Career Planning Center. You can also literally link up on the greens with potential employers at the Jones School's annual golf outing, organized by the students to promote interaction between them, recruiters, and alumni.

LIFELONG FRIENDSHIPS

When you graduate, you'll automatically become a member of the Jones Graduate School Alumni Association. So no matter where your career takes you, you'll continue to be a member of Rice University's close knit community. Jones School alumni live throughout the U.S. and in a number of foreign countries. Even alumni in far corners of the globe continue to maintain good friendships long after graduation.

The Jones Graduate School Alumni Affairs office works closely with the alumni association to coordinate special events and networking opportunities to promote educational and professional development.

The alumni association invites students and faculty to social events in Houston throughout the year—including a homecoming lunch, a spring picnic, breakfast meetings, theater parties, and an annual dinner. To keep you in touch, the association publishes a directory that's distributed to second-year students, faculty, staff, and alumni.

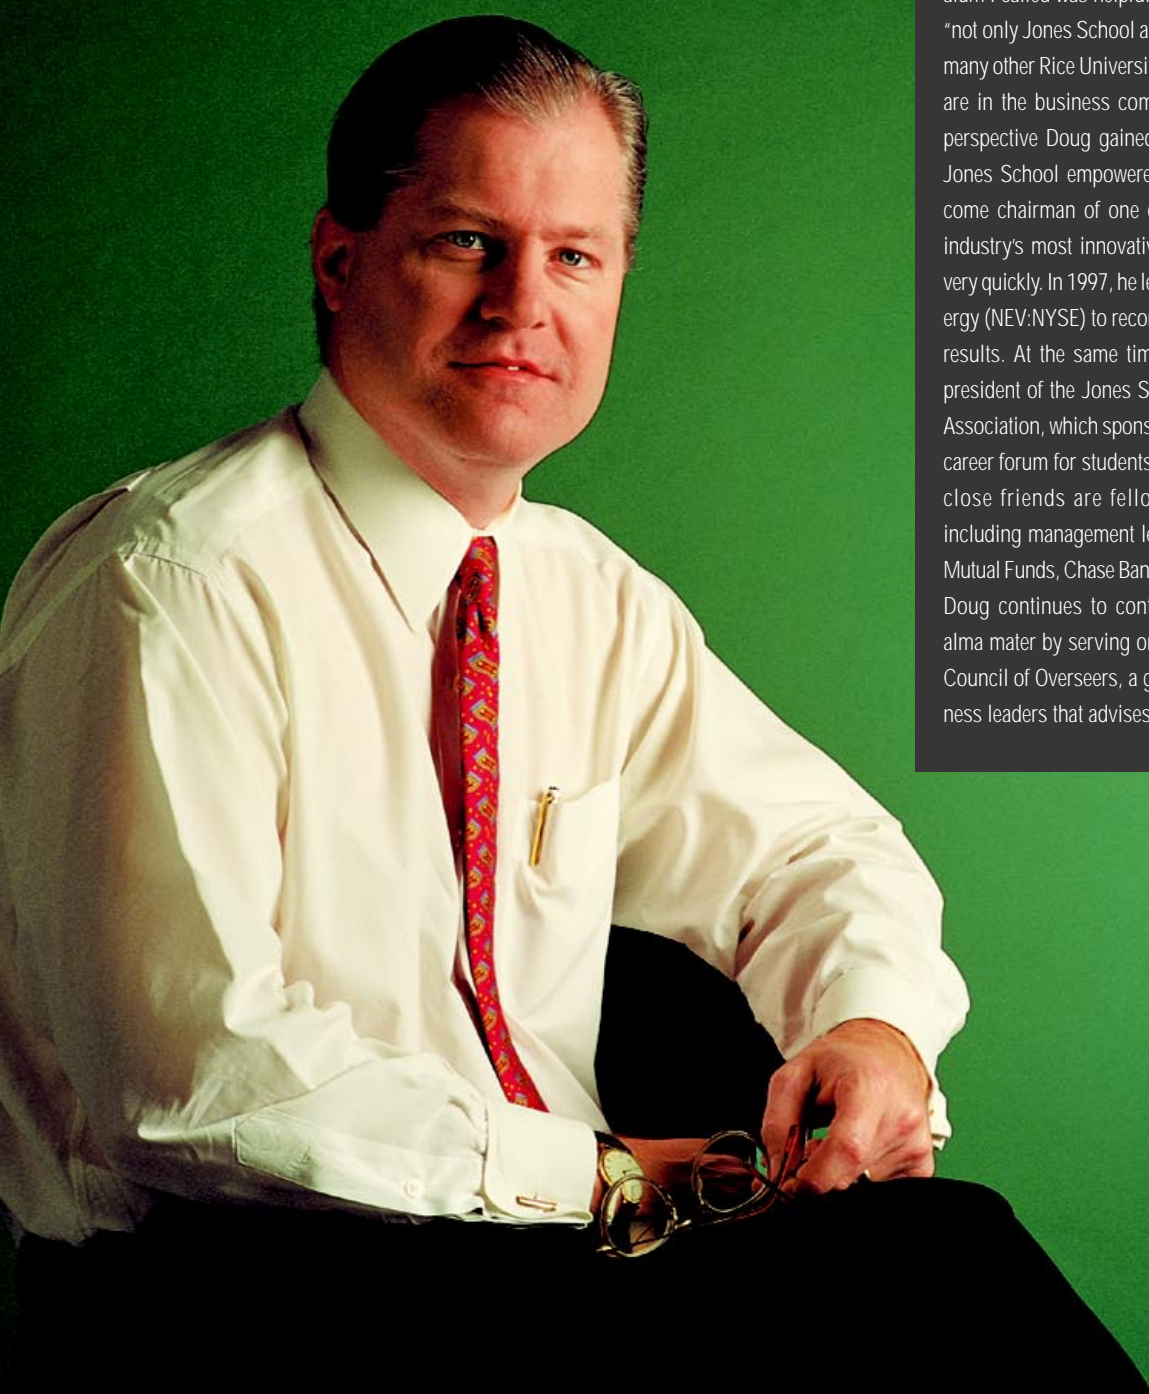

MORE GREAT BUSINESS CONNECTIONS

TO BUILD A CAREER IN GLOBAL BUSINESS, SOMETIMES WHAT'S MOST IMPORTANT IS WHOM YOU KNOW.

The Jones School maintains close working relationships with two influential groups of business and industry leaders who serve on the Council of Overseers and as Partners.

"WHEN I RUN INTO MY PROFESSORS AT RECEPTIONS OR AROUND TOWN, IT'S LIKE SEEING OLD FRIENDS. I DON'T THINK YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE THAT KIND OF RELATIONSHIP AT A LOT OF GRADUATE SCHOOLS."

Rice MBA '93;
Director of Global Brand

.....
DOUG FOSHEE, RICE MBA '92;
CHAIRMAN, PRESIDENT, AND CEO,
NUEVO ENERGY COMPANY.

As CEO of one of the most successful publicly traded independent energy companies in the industry, Doug Foshee '92 credits the Rice alumni network for many of his most important business connections. Thanks to this network and the Jones School's Career Planning Center, he chose from several job offers while finishing his MBA. "Every alum I called was helpful," Doug says, "not only Jones School alumni, but the many other Rice University alumni who are in the business community." The perspective Doug gained while at the Jones School empowered him to become chairman of one of the energy industry's most innovative companies very quickly. In 1997, he lead Nuevo Energy (NEV:NYSE) to record operational results. At the same time, Doug was president of the Jones School Alumni Association, which sponsors an annual career forum for students. Some of his close friends are fellow alumni—including management leaders at AIM Mutual Funds, Chase Bank, and CIGNA. Doug continues to contribute to his alma mater by serving on the school's Council of Overseers, a group of business leaders that advises the dean.

COUNCIL OF OVERSEERS

The Jones School's curriculum and direction are led by the Council of Overseers, a group of prominent business executives who meet regularly with the dean. The council also participates in recruiting faculty.
